

SRI SRI RAVI SHANKAR

GLOBAL INITIATIVES

Sri Sri Ravi Shankar is a renowned spiritual leader and global humanitarian whose mission of uniting the world into a violence-free, stress-free, global family has inspired millions of people to broaden their share of responsibility and serve society.

Sri Sri has devised practical tools and techniques that help individuals achieve calmness of mind and clarity of thought. Such a state of mind empowers individuals to achieve their goals and instills a sense of service and greater connectedness with humanity.

In 1981, Sri Sri established The Art of Living Foundation, an educational organization with a presence in over 156 countries. The Foundation's individual development programs offer powerful tools to eliminate stress and foster a sense of well-being.

In 1997, Sri Sri founded the International Association for Human Values (IAHV), a humanitarian organization, which promotes societal responsibility and human values in political, economic and social spheres.

IAHV and The Art of Living Foundation collaborate on several humanitarian initiatives, including conflict resolution, disaster and trauma relief, environmental conservation, anti-corruption, prisoner rehabilitation, youth leadership, women's empowerment and universal education. Both organizations enjoy special consultative status with the Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC) of the United Nations.

IN REVIEW

The whole world is one family, so it is necessary that we live with naturalness and simplicity; only then life blossoms. The wall that we erect between ourselves and others needs to be demolished. From your side, drop all inhibitions between you and others.

PROMOTING PEACE

Appeals for peace during Jallikattu movement

Bengaluru, Karnataka, India, Jan. 23

Following the violence that erupted around the Jallikattu movement, Gurudev appealed to the protesting people of Tamil Nadu to keep calm. He counseled the people to not let anti-social miscreants destroy the success of the peaceful movement. He advocated for a peaceful protest against the ban of Jallikattu. "Six days of the peaceful movement should have been followed by celebration, rather than violence," said Gurudev.

Gives a ray of hope and peace to Naxal youth

Bastar, Chhattisgarh, India, Feb. 26

Citing examples of success of peace process in Columbia and positive developments in Assam, Gurudev assured the villagers and youth that peace is possible in Bastar, too. During the first-ever visit to Bastar, Gurudev addressed thousands of villagers who attended the event, 'Satsang with Sri Sri'.

At this large public gathering of at least 20,000 people, Gurudev appealed to the Naxals to drop the bullet and get on the ballot.

"I know that these youth carry fire in their hearts, they stand up for justice and to get rid of poverty, but they have to desist from using violence as a means of struggle," he said.

Gurudev said he understands their pain, sacrifice and commitment to social justice. He urged the Maoists to shun the path of violence, join the mainstream society, and work for prosperity of the region. He offered to act as an interlocutor between the government and the Maoists for peace talks.

Gurudev also inaugurated a sports academy for adivasi (tribal) youth in Bijapur, a district in the tribal region of Bastar in Chhattisgarh. It is one of the active hotbeds for naxal activities. The academy aims to help local youth develop their talents and stay away from the path of violence. Role of Eastern Knowledge in Health Sciences talk at NIMHANS

Bengaluru, Karnataka, India, Feb. 14

Gurudev spoke as the chief guest at the Annual Day of the National Institute for Mental Health and Neurosciences (NIMHANS).

"I am thrilled to be interacting with neuroscientists. What the yogis have experienced, you are putting it in scientific terms. This is what is essential today because any truth that isn't open to scientific tests is a weak truth," Gurudev said.

Explaining the ancient Eastern idea of health, he said, "Education about any system of health is only complete with the knowledge of the Self." "Swastha, the Sanskrit word for health," he explained, "means established in the Self. One who is reposed in the Self. For that, you need to know what the Self is."

He added that NIMHANS should not only look at treating the sick, but also probe into the mechanics of consciousness, with some ancient texts such as Yoga Vasishtha as reference points.

Expressing pride in the service that NIMHANS is doing to the nation, he urged them to take up the cause of creating mental wellness across the country. It could be in the form of daily rituals to keep the mind healthy and setting-up happiness clinics for counseling or meditation. The interaction concluded with a QnA.

Gurudev lauds Narmada Seva Yatra

Dhar, Madhya Pradesh, India, Feb. 28

As a chief guest, Gurudev joined the Jan Samvad - a public event organized as part of Namami Seva Yatra - an awareness campaign to highlight the importance of conserving the River Narmada. He lauded the awareness campaign and other efforts of state Chief Minister Mr. Shivraj Singh Chouhan, which includes women empowerment, de-addiction and saving the girl child. Gurudev requested the public to devote an hour to de-addiction work for betterment of the nation.

He also urged the government to push for prohibition and save the masses from the menace of alcoholism. Responding to the call, CM Chouhan assured that his government will ensure that there is no shop selling alcohol in a five-kilometer radius around the banks of Narmada river. The CM, thanking Gurudev, said, "With his visit, Gurudev has filled us with the inspiration to put all our might in implementing de-addiction and tree plantation projects."

Gurudev attended an evening of melodious satsang, organized by the Bhopal chapter of The Art of Living.

Gurudev addresses the Bhopal Legislative Assembly Bhopal, Madhya Pradesh, India, Mar. 1

Addressing the legislative assembly of Madhya Pradesh that saw a huge participation by legislators and top leaders with a request for extending the sessions for yoga and meditation, Gurudev advised the legislators to build holistic relationships with their people. "A sense of belongingness can have much more impact than any amount of money can have," he said.

He congratulated the state government for setting-up Asia's first Happiness Ministry and emphasized on the role of spirituality in tackling violence in the society.

"After Bhopal jail inmates were made to learn simple ways to be pure and tension-free, they wrote letters telling if they were taught this earlier, they would not have committed the crime," Gurudev said.

Gurudev suggested a hall of silence for ministers to help them maintain a positive state of mind. He also interacted with the state bureaucrats.

Gurudev bats for addiction-free villages, organic farming in Jharkhand Dhanbad, Jharkhand, India, Mar. 2

Gurudev addressed an overwhelming gathering of 40,000 farmers in Deogarh in Jharkhand, where he reiterated examples of farmers from other states whose profits increased by a great margin when they turned to natural and traditional means of farming.

He appealed to state agriculture minister, Mr. Randheer Singh, to give 20 fruit saplings to each farmer stating that farmers will be able to make more profits within 4-5 years when these saplings start bearing fruit.

Singh responded saying, "We will see to it that farmers follow organic farming and I promise to give 20 fruit saplings to each farmer. We will encourage them in the areas of horticulture, cattle rearing, fisheries, mushroom and guava farming. We will also help people become free of addictions, and soon declare the state drug-free."

People who came for an evening satsang with Gurudev pledged to curb addiction of all kinds and spread the knowledge of yoga and meditation in their communities, villages, towns, and cities. In another event, Gurudev presided over a gathering of 80,000 people for an evening of music and meditation. He appealed to the masses to plant more trees and remove the stigma of being the dirtiest city.

2-day summit gives a shot in the arm to natural farming Bengaluru, Karnataka, India, May 9-10

In his efforts to revive the dying agriculture industry, Gurudev inaugurated a two-day summit on natural farming at The Art of Living International Center in Bengaluru. The summit was organized by the Sri Sri Institute of Agricultural Sciences and Technology Trust. The summit witnessed participation of 200 delegates including farmers, educators, policy-makers, researchers, state advisors, activists, and scientists from India and abroad. It also had workshops on natural farming.

Experts included representatives from premier institutes like the Indian Council of Agricultural Research, Krishi Vigyan Kendras, and various other agricultural boards.

Setting the agenda of the summit, Gurudev said, "What is needed is to reaffirm our faith in natural farming. There is a misnomer that only with expensive fertilizers and pesticides can we achieve good yield but that is not the case." He cited examples of farmers whose revenues arose after switching to natural farming.

He also emphasized on the need for protecting indigenous seeds which can ensure higher yields. He beckoned the gathering to contemplate on how to create a planet free of chemical farming and spread the knowledge of natural farming to the masses. He urged the ministers from Andhra Pradesh, Telangana, and Chhattisgarh present on the dais to free their state from chemical farming.

State minister for Agriculture, Andhra Pradesh, Mr. S Chandra Mohan Reddy, said, "Our state has extended financial support to many projects of natural farming. Current agricultural practices of using chemical fertilizers and pesticides has pushed small farmers into debt."

Jupally Krishna Rao, Minister for Rural Development of Telangana, added that various associations to promote natural farming have been formed and lakhs of farmers are enrolled.

On the second day of the summit, Gurudev presented Krishi Ratna awards to fifty farmers who established new paradigms in natural farming, carried out zero-budget farming and obtained higher yields with lesser quantity.
